III) Scheduling and Enrollment

- The department is interested in offering Anthropology courses as dual enrollment. Anthro 2 would be the best choice and possibly Anthro 3.
- Average of 31 sections offered between Spring 2020 and Spring 2023
 - Fill rates have dipped slightly from Fall 2020 to Fall 2023.
 - Online sections have higher fill rates then other modalities.
- Discussed students influence on scheduling classes in future semesters.
 - Decreased the number of on campus classes due to low fill rates
 - More online sections
 - Flexible schedule to meet student modality needs
 - Avoid scheduling overlapping sections of a course or courses required for a major.

IV) Student Success and Gap Data

- Asian American and White students have remained above the average success rate.
 - Asian American Students dropped in Fall 2020 but have steadily increased in 2021 and 2022.
 - White student's success rate have remained above average but have dropped slightly in Fall 2022.
- In Fall 2019-Fall 2021 Latinx students stayed slightly below average success rate. As of Fall 2022 Latinx students are meeting the average success rate.
- Success GAP for African American students has increased from Fall 2019 -7.2% to Fall 2022 -15.2%.
 - Discussed how department can decrease equity gaps for African American students.

V) SLOs and Curriculum

- The Museum Studies courses – Anthro 20 – is being reactivated. The department would like to offer it in Spring 2024.

Spring 2023 Enrollment – Seats Filled and Unfilled

Fall 2023 Scheduling

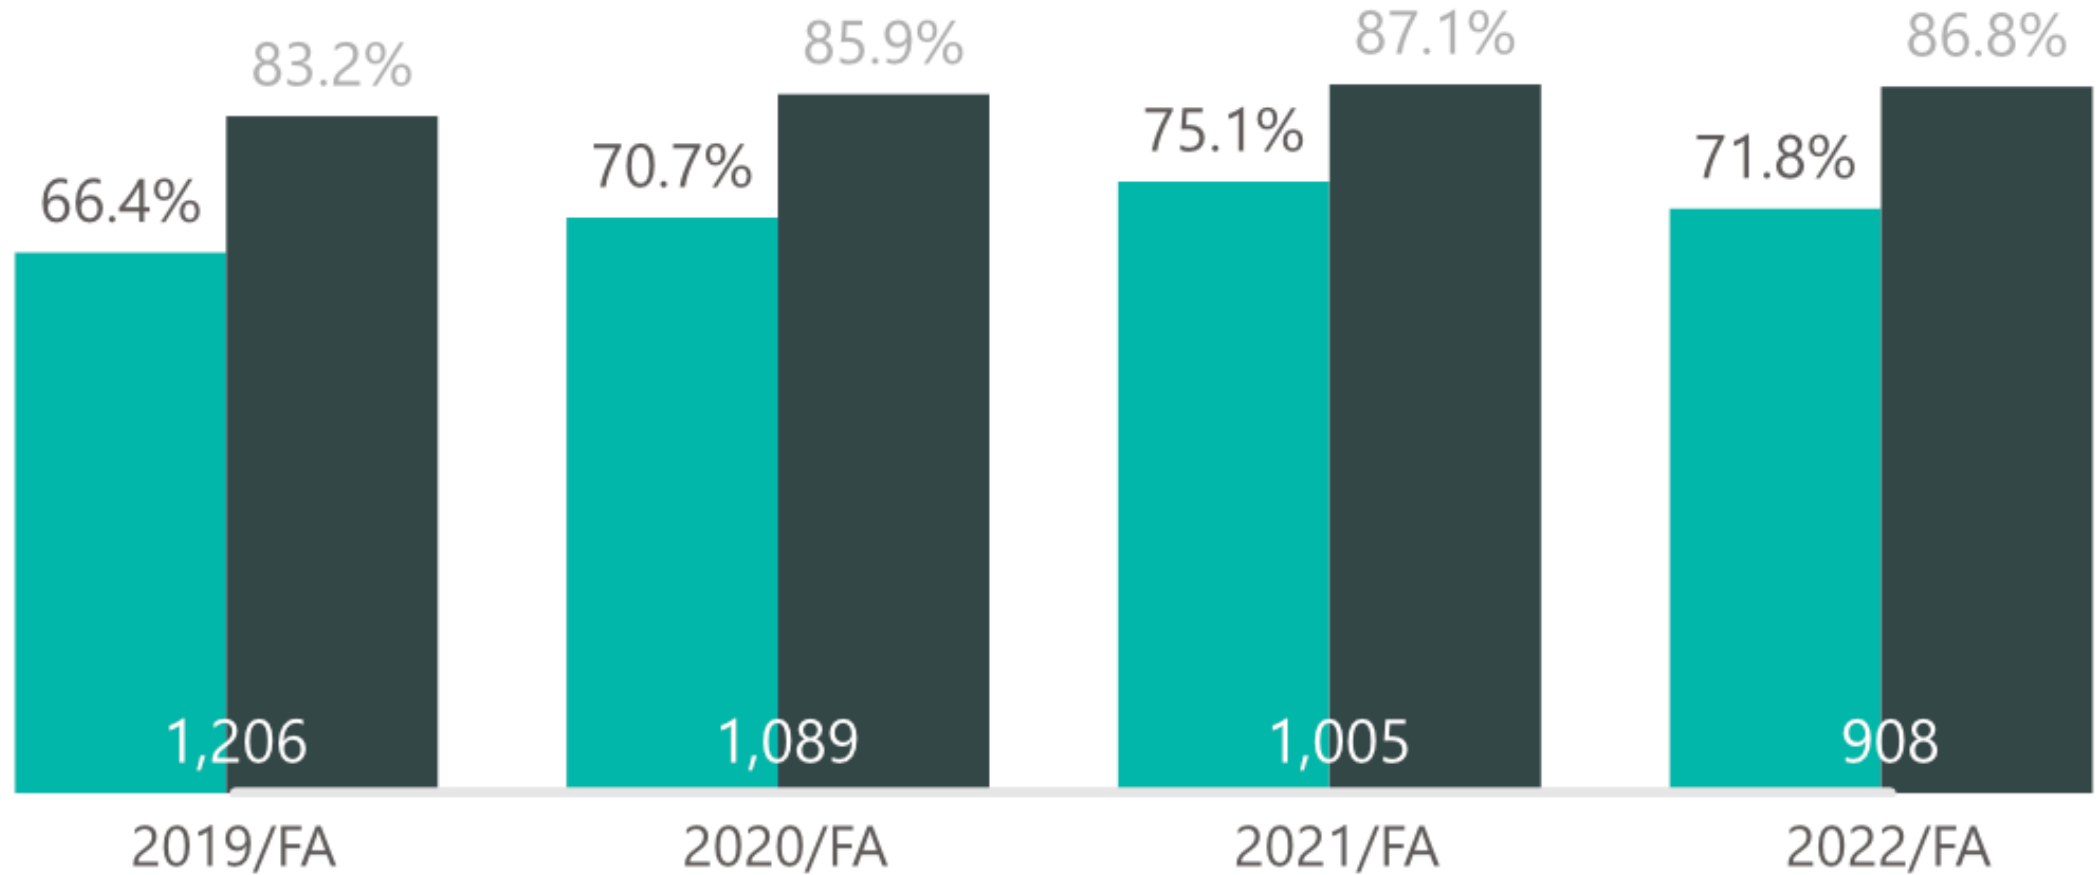

Scheduling Priority: Improve fill rates while maximizing student access to general education and major's courses in a strategically selected variety of modalities that reflect enrollment patterns and shifting student demand since the return to campus.

Goals/Factors

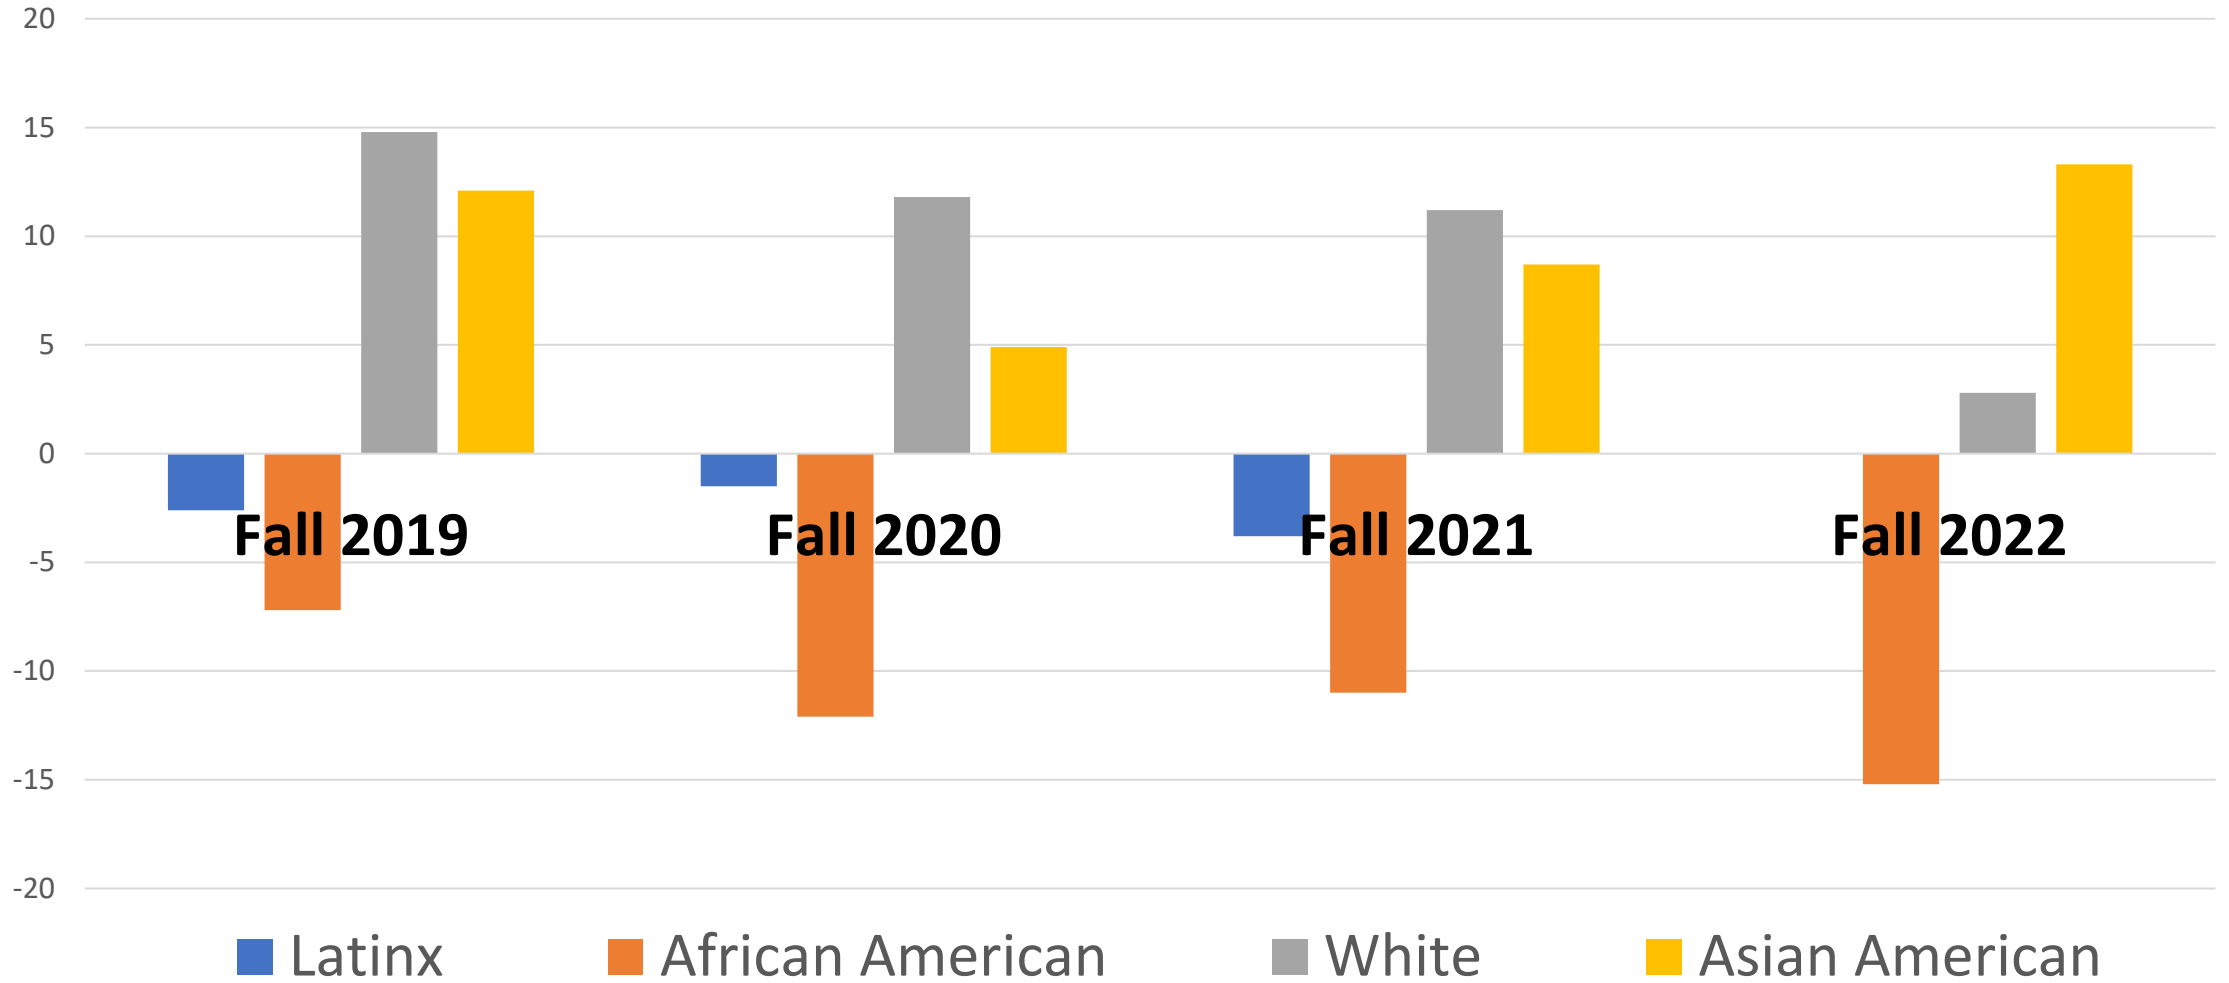

1. Strategically schedule fewer on campus sections, so we don't have multiple sections of a course with very low enrollment yet we still maintain a variety of on campus options for students (Spring 2023 BSS on campus fill rate 54%).
2. Maintain online sections (Spring 2023 BSS online fill rate 87%).
3. Avoid scheduling overlapping sections of a course or courses required for a major.
4. Modest demand for on campus and hybrid classes will support the expectation that faculty be teaching on campus 2 days a week in Fall 2023. In Spring 2024, it is possible that will increase to 3 instructional days a week on campus.
5. All classes must comply with the block schedule.
