

General Information: California teaching credentials Counseling Division

Students who are pursuing a career in teaching are strongly encouraged to meet with an El Camino College counselor.

Teaching As A Career

Consider a career in teaching if:

- You have a strong passion for the profession
- You have a sincere interest in working with a diversity of students, parents, and colleagues
- You are able to work unsupervised and to effectively manage a classroom
- You are creative, energetic, compassionate, patient, organized, and flexible

Early field experience in a culturally and/or linguistically diverse classroom is strongly recommended prior to entering this profession. Students should consider volunteering as tutors, camp counselors, peer advisors, recreation aides, and teachers' assistants.

Types of Teaching Credentials

Multiple Subject: Designed for prospective elementary school teachers who will instruct students (grades K-5) in a variety of subjects, including language arts, mathematics, social science, physical and life science, physical education, and the arts.

Single Subject: Designed for prospective middle or high school teachers who will instruct students (grades 6-12) in one or more of the following subjects: art, biology, business, chemistry, dance, English, foundational level math, foundational level science, geosciences, health science, home economics, industrial and technology education, mathematics, music, physical education, physics, social sciences, theatre, and world language (English language development and languages other than English).

Education Specialist: Designed for prospective special education teachers who will design and implement developmentally appropriate curriculum for students with special needs, including attention disorders, emotional disturbances, mild to severe intellectual disabilities, deaf-blindness, autism, and a variety of physical disabilities.

Educational Requirements

All prospective teachers must:

- Possess a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited university
- Complete a teacher preparation program inclusive of teaching methods courses, reading instruction, testing/measurement, health education, technology, working with diverse student populations, developing English language skills, fieldwork, and student teaching
- Demonstrate subject matter competency via coursework or an exam. Prospective elementary school teachers should major in Liberal Studies to be waived out of the entire CSET (California Subject Exam for Teachers) and they must also take and pass a reading assessment. Secondary teachers may complete an approved subject matter preparation program at the university level or major in the subject they wish to teach if it is a one to one match (such as English or math) or they can take all or part of the CSET Single Subject in the field they wish to teach. Special education teachers may follow either route, but they must also pass the reading assessment.

- Demonstrate knowledge of the principles and practices of the US Constitution via coursework, an exam, or possession of a degree from a California State University (CSU)
- Obtain a character clearance

Pathways to Earning a Credential

Credential candidates have a number of options with respect to earning a credential:

- Option 1: Complete an integrated program wherein the bachelor's degree and credential are awarded simultaneously
- Option 2: Complete a traditional program wherein a bachelor's degree is completed prior to the credential program
- Option 3: Current bachelor's degree holders can complete a district or university intern program that allows them to teach during the day and complete a credential program in the late afternoon/evening. Note: Foreign degree holders must be legally eligible to work in the United States, must be proficient in the English language, and must have their transcripts evaluated by a California Commission on Teacher Credentialing approved transcript evaluation service.

Additional Certificates, Authorizations and Credentials

- Bilingual Authorizations (BILA): Authorizes teachers to instruct students in the student's primary language
- Degree Authorizations: Allows credential holders to add additional subjects to their credentials, provided that 32 units have been completed in a specific area or that the CSET has been passed. Note 1: This option is particularly useful for elementary school teachers who wish to teach middle school as well.
- Administrative Services: Authorizes service as a school administrator, including superintendent, assistant superintendent, principal, or assistant principal
- School Nurse: Authorizes service as a school nurse, and, with additional coursework, an instructor of courses in health education as well
- Teacher Librarian Services: Authorizes service as a school librarian
- Pupil Personnel Services: Authorizes service as a school counselor, psychologist, social worker, or child welfare and attendance officer
- Speech Language Pathology Services: Authorizes service with students challenged by speech, language, hearing and audiology disorders
- Clinical Rehabilitative Services: Authorizes service with students challenged by audiology, orientation, and mobility disorders
- Designated Subjects: Authorizes service as an adult educator in vocational or academic subjects
