innovative education

Community Partnerships ensure excellence in education

For half of our nation's undergraduate students, community college is a practical pathway to the American dream. In our area, El Camino College proudly educates and prepares over 30,000 students a year to become the future employees and leaders of our community.

The Foundation helps ensure that all El Camino College students, regardless of their financial situation or background, have the support they need to achieve a college education with a degree or certificate from our institution.

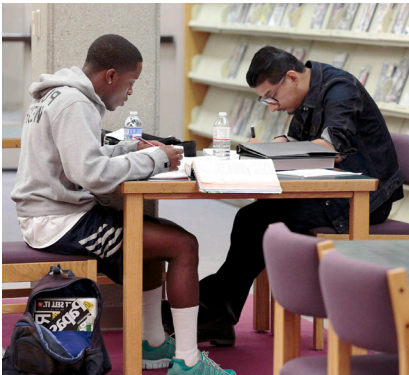

“With the support of our partners in the community, we’ll serve many students and help them realize their dreams.”

Community Partnerships support the educational success of all students

El Camino is one of the top 100 community colleges in the nation. This is due to academic excellence in all areas of study, consistently high transfer rates to four-year universities and exceptional career and technical training.

The College offers 99 degrees and 83 certificates taught by nearly 1,000 full and part-time faculty. As the world becomes more dependent on technology, we offer the best in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) education through programs in engineering, physics, manufacturing technology, healthcare, computer information systems and more.

Books can cost as much as tuition. Foundation scholarships also cover books, so their expenses do not interfere with student success.

Students who can afford to enroll full-time are more likely to complete their degree in two years, saving significant time and money over their lifetimes. The Foundation distributes $1 million in scholarships annually allowing students to focus on their studies.

The Foundation supports programs aimed at student success. Beginning in high school, South Bay Promise students receive special instruction and counseling that eases the transition to college and keeps them on track to transfer to a four-year college.

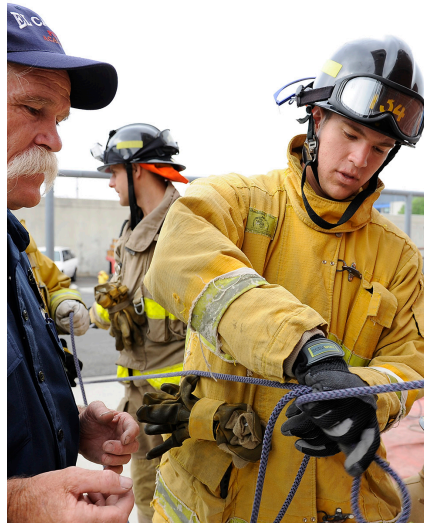

Community Partnerships educate tomorrow's workforce

We invite you to join the El Camino College Foundation as a Community Partner. The support of companies with a vested interest in the South Bay community helps more students realize their dreams. Your support recognizes your company as an organization that believes in the community and the power of education.

As a sponsor, you will be recognized and acknowledged as having a special relationship with El Camino College, including membership in our President's Circle, invitations to special events on campus, and visibility to the broad community.

Together we can make a significant impact in the lives of students and our South Bay community.

For more information, contact the El Camino College Foundation at (310) 660-3683 or foundation@elcamino.edu.

We also support students in El Camino's 46 career and technical education programs.

We fill a critical workforce need. It is estimated that most job openings in the next decade will require the skills of community college graduates.

Who will fill jobs in the South Bay's growing health care industry? Our students. We help them succeed in our award-winning health care programs.
